FRISCO BRIDGE IS WASHED AWAY

PUEBLO SETTLES DOWN IN EFFORT TO REPAIR LOSS

By United Press.

The Pueblo Sun-Telegraph of Pueblo, Colorado, today announced the settlement of a long-standing dispute between the city of Pueblo and the Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad over the repair of the Frisco Bridge.

The bridge, which spans the Arkansas River, was washed away during a flash flood in September, causing extensive damage to the rail line and disrupting traffic.

Under the terms of the settlement, the railroad will pay $500,000 to the city of Pueblo for the repair of the bridge. The city will retain the right to seek additional compensation for any future damages caused by the railroad.

The bridge, which is the only connection between Pueblo and the rest of the state, has been closed since the flood, causing substantial economic loss for the city and surrounding area.

TIMES LIST OF DEAD BODIES TO BE IN LATE AFTERNOON

Today's edition of the Los Angeles Times, under the headline "List of Dead Bodies To Be In Late Afternoon," reports the discovery of a number of bodies in the Los Angeles River basin.

The bodies, which were discovered by a team of experts from the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office, are believed to have been washed away by the recent floods.

The bodies, which include men, women, and children, were found in various locations along the river, including the area where the Frisco Bridge once stood.

The discovery of the bodies has led to increased efforts to locate and recover the remains of those who perished in the flood.

WIRELESS CALLS AID TO STEAMER ON U.S. COAST

By United Press.

In a development that is expected to have far-reaching implications for maritime communications, the United States Coast Guard today announced the successful completion of a wireless call to a steamer on the U.S. coast.

The call, which was transmitted from a new wireless station in San Francisco, was answered by the steamer "Sunset," which was sailing on the Pacific Ocean.

The wireless call, which was transmitted using a new experimental apparatus, was received by the steamer "Sunset" within minutes of its transmission.

The success of the call has opened up new possibilities for wireless communication, which could revolutionize the way that ships and other vessels communicate with each other and with shore-based stations.

ALICE NIGHTRIDER

By United Press.

In a demonstration that she is ready to take on the role of a modern-day vigilante, Alice Nightrider today took to the streets of Los Angeles to hunt down a group of bandits who were robbing and terrorizing the city.

Using her unique skills and abilities, Alice Nightrider managed to track down the bandits and apprehend them, bringing an end to their reign of terror.

The demonstration, which was witnessed by a large crowd of admirers, has led to increased interest in Alice Nightrider as a potential candidate for the role of a modern-day hero.

ELECT OFFICERS CHIC, C. OF C.

By United Press.

In a move that is expected to have far-reaching implications for the future of the Chicago Board of Trade, C. of C. employees today elected a new set of officers to lead the organization.

The new officers, who were chosen by a special election, are expected to bring fresh ideas and perspectives to the board, which has been facing significant challenges in recent years.

The election, which was conducted in a secret ballot, was overseen by a special election committee appointed by the board.

CANCER WAGGON ON WAY TO CLEVELAND

By United Press.

A cancer waggion, which is expected to be a major breakthrough in the fight against cancer, today set out on its journey from New York to Cleveland.

The waggion, which is equipped with the latest technology and is staffed by a team of experts, is expected to play a key role in the development of new treatments and therapies for cancer.

The journey, which is expected to take several weeks, is a testament to the dedication and commitment of those who are working to find a cure for this devastating disease.

The waggion, which was sponsored by the American Cancer Society, is expected to be welcomed by a crowd of well-wishers upon its arrival in Cleveland.

NEO-FUTURISM IN EASTERN EUROPE

By United Press.

In a move that is expected to have far-reaching implications for the future of Eastern European art, a group of avant-garde artists today opened a new exhibition in Moscow.

The exhibition, which is expected to showcase the latest works of young artists, is expected to bring fresh ideas and perspectives to the art world.

The opening, which was attended by a large crowd of admirers, has led to increased interest in the work of these young artists and their contribution to the world of art.